Protecting Yourself from Germsかんせんしょう からだ まも
感染症から体を守る

As there has been a large number of influenza cases recently, please keep in mind the following points.

Vaccinations

Getting a flu shot reduces the risk of getting sick. If you do become sick, it will reduce your level of contagiousness.

Coughing Etiquette

The flu is mostly spread through airborne droplets via coughing and sneezing. Please turn away from other people when coughing or sneezing, and wear a mask in order to protect others.

Handwashing

Washing hands with soap and water is effective in killing germs.

Keeping Moisture

Dry air weakens the mucous membranes of the throat and makes it easier to become sick. When in a dry area, use a humidifier or some other device in order to retain a proper level of moisture in the room (50-60%).

Strengthen Your Immune System

Always get plenty of rest and be sure to have a balanced diet.

If You Get Sick

Get lots of rest, drink plenty of fluids, and see a doctor as soon as possible.

Giseigo Corner 擬声語コーナー

Hello and welcome to the Giseigo Corner! Giseigo are Japanese words describing sounds or conditions.

ぽかぽか

Poka poka

“A state of being warm and cozy”

Poka poka is truly a great sensation. There are many different ways to get that feeling. What's your favorite method?

Note from the Editor へんしゅうしゃのことば

With the advent of Setsubun, it's springtime in Japan. Well, supposedly. Growing up, I learned about a Jewish holiday called Tu Bishvat which comes around the same time as Setsubun and is also supposed to herald the beginning of spring. While Tu Bishvat may be a sign of spring in tropical Israel, where it is celebrated, it always struck me as odd since February is still very cold where I'm from. Similarly, I find it strange how Setsubun means spring even though it's still cold here!

Nonetheless, spring weather should arrive before too long. Spring is my favorite season, so I'm very excited.

Festivals and National Holidays さいじつ・ぎょうじ

National Foundation Day

けんこくきねん ひ
建国記念の日

February 11th

As the name suggests, National Foundation Day celebrates the establishment of the Japanese nation. First established in 1966, National Foundation Day is based off of an older holiday called Kigensetsu (Empire Day) which celebrates the ascension of Emperor Jimmu, the first emperor of Japan, to the throne. Kigensetsu disappeared after the second World War, but was revived 20 years later in its current form. Nonetheless, the National Foundation Day of today is not as important as Kigensetsu used to be.

Valentine's Day

バレンタイン・デー

February 14th

Valentine's Day, the Western holiday of love, has become incredibly popular in Japan. However, there are some notable differences. In Japan, Valentine's Day is a day for women to give chocolates. Chocolates are divided into giri-choco (literally "obligation chocolates"), which are platonic, and honmei-choco (literally "desire chocolates"), which are given to romantic interests. Giving tomo-choco (literally "friend chocolates") to friends has also gained popularity in recent years. While some men do give gifts on Valentine's Day, it is primarily a day for women to give giri-choco to male coworkers, classmates, and friends and honmei-choco to love interests. Men are expected to return the favor on a separate holiday in March, called "White Day."

Sapporo Snow Festival

さっぽろ雪まつり

February 5th – 11th

Held since 1950, the Sapporo Snow Festival attracts approximately two million visitors from all over the world every year to Sapporo, Hokkaido. The snow and ice statues are truly a sight to behold. In addition to the statues, there are also fun snow and ice attractions such as slides, mazes, and snowmen. Seika doesn't get much snow, so if you have the opportunity, make sure to drop by Sapporo for a fun time.
