General Information

Have an Itchy Nose? 治したい、鼻のムズムズ

くらしのじょうほう

Allergy season has arrived. Sneezing, runny nose, congestion...it's enough to make someone want to wash out the inside of their nose. This article includes information that may be of help to allergy sufferers.

Allergies: The Body's Overreaction

Allergies are caused by your body's overreaction to certain external stimuli. Hay fever is what happens when pollen comes inside of your nose, causing sneezing and runny nose. If the pollen causes swelling inside of your nose, it can also cause congestion. These symptoms stem from your body's attempt to expel foreign substances.

Wearing a Mask

Wearing a mask can help prevent allergies. There are a bunch of medicines for treating allergies, such as antihistamines and steroids, but all of them only alleviate symptoms temporarily and are not a fundamental cure. The stronger the medicine is, the worse its side effects such as drowsiness, sluggishness, dry mouth, etc. are. Other methods of treatment include boosting the body's immunity through allergen injections and surgery.

Nasal and Oral Medicines

In recent years, new methods of treating allergies have appeared. These include corticosteroid nasal sprays and sublingual immunotherapy.

Corticosteroid nasal sprays are a type of medicine that is sprayed into the nose. If used before pollen levels peak, they can prevent hay fever. Over-the-counter vasoconstrictors provide immediate relief, but their effects only last for approximately three hours. If used repeatedly, they can exacerbate nasal congestion.

Sublingual immunotherapy involves a daily dosage of medicine taken under the tongue. As of this winter, it is covered by health insurance. Although results can be seen in 70 to 80 percent of users, it takes two years for the immunotherapy to go into effect. Those with heart conditions or other serious illnesses, women pregnant or trying to become pregnant, and children under the age of six cannot use this method.

Aside from these, another method is combining different medicines, such as non-drowsy antihistamines and corticosteroid nasal sprays. These allow one to cure or prevent allergies without unpleasant side effects.

Giseigo Corner

Hello and welcome to the Giseigo Corner! Giseigo are Japanese words describing sounds. This corner will also include gitaigo, which describe conditions.

Shiku shiku "A state of sobbing quietly"

Winter is a rough season. The weather is cold, and the sky becomes dark early. Many people become sad around this time of year. May you get through this winter without crying in a shiku shiku manner!

Note from the Editor へんしゅうしゃのことば

At long last, January has given way to February. January is often thought of as a cold time in Kyōto. While this is true, it pales in comparison to my hometown. This is true even in normal years, but this year my home was particularly cold, reaching into the low negative single digits Fahrenheit (approximately -20 C). Also, the wind chill in America's Midwest reached around -70 (approximately -55 C)!

To be sure, Kyōto's winter is still rough. While at least buildings in America are well-heated, I find it to be cold here even indoors. Can't wait for spring!

Festivals and National Holidays さいじつ・ぎょうじ

National Foundation Day 建国記念の日 February 11th

As the name suggests, National Foundation Day celebrates the establishment of the Japanese nation. First begun in 1966, this holiday is based off of an older holiday called Kigensetsu (Empire Day), which celebrated the ascension of Japan's first emperor, Jimmu, to the throne. Kigensetsu disappeared after World War II, but was revived 20 years later in its current form. Nonetheless, the National Foundation Day of today is not as important as Kigensetsu used to be.

Valentine's Day バレンタイン・デー February 14th

Valentine's Day, the Western holiday of love, has become incredibly popular in Japan. However, there are some notable differences. In Japan, Valentine's Day is primarily a day for women to give chocolates. Chocolates are classified into giri-choco (literally "obligation chocolates"), which are platonic, and honmei-choco (literally "desire chocolates"), which are given to romantic interests. Giving tomo-choco ("friend chocolates") to friends has also gained popularity in recent years. While some men do give gifts on Valentine's Day, it is primarily a day for women to give giri-choco to male coworkers, classmates, and friends and honmei-choco to love interests. Mone are expected to return the favor on a separate day in March, known as "White Day."

Sapporo Snow Festival さっぽろ雪まつり February 5th – 11th

Held since 1950, the Sapporo Snow Festival attracts approximately two million visitors every year to Sapporo, Hokkaidō from all over the world. The snow and ice statues are truly sights to behold. In addition to these, there are also fun snow and ice attractions such as slides, mazes, and snowmen. Seika doesn't get much snow, so if you have the opportunity, make sure to drop by Sapporo for a fun time.
