Preventing Mosquito Outbreaks

In the summer there tend to be outbreaks of mosquitos, which can lay up to several hundred eggs at a time. After about three days they develop into larvae and after about 10 to 15, into full grown mosquitos.

Mosquitos give birth in places that collect small amounts of water. Please take note of the following points.

Preventing Mosquito Larvae

- ◆ Collection plates for plant pots.
 - Turn collection plates upside down when they are not in use.
 - For plates that you are using, clean them out and refill with fresh water once a week.
- ◆ Empty Cans and Glass Bottles

Keep them out of the rain and make sure they do not have water in them.
- ◆ Buckets and Watering Pans

Turn them upside down to make sure they do not get water in them.

Preventing Adult Mosquitos

- Mosquitos can get into buildings fairly easily so make sure to install mosquito nets.
- Avoid allowing your skin to get exposed.

Evacuation Advice for the Town

Due to the effects of the 11th and 12th typhoons last year, there was large scale flooding and mudslide damage. There were even official announcements for evacuation advice regarding areas that are at danger of mudslide damage.

Be Careful of Places You Know Too!

Before and after a typhoon passes by, flooded rivers and drains may be hard to see and there are many incidents all around the country of people getting swept away when going to check on them.

Even places that seem safe during the day can occasionally become very dangerous during typhoons. Do not let your guard down even around places that you know, and do not approach dangerous places.

Things You Can Do Outside Your House

Make sure to tightly lock your windows and storm shutters and if necessary, cover your windows with boards to strengthen them.

Clean out drains and gutters and make sure they are empty. Secure pots and trash or move them inside.

Things You Can Do Inside Your House

If you do not have a storm shutter, put tape on your windows or cover them with your curtains to prevent them from shattering.

Prepare an emergency bag. Confirm dangerous passageways using an evacuation map ahead of time.

Other Strategies

Confirm the route to your evacuation location and how to receive messages regarding emergency information. Make a plan based on your understanding of the danger of a typhoon.

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Have you seen the new Suntory research facility near Keihanna Plaza? As a part of the Kansai Science City, Seika is continuously growing and changing. Sometimes the idea of places that we know and love changing can be scary, but do not worry because the friendly, caring atmosphere that we have here in Seika will not change no matter how our town grows.
